

Informed Consent

The patient understands that Lyme disease in its many facets, including diagnosis and treatment, remains perhaps one of the most controversial diseases of all the time.

The patient understands that Dr. Jaller's approach, diagnosis and treatment, represents a minority approach to the disease and deviates substantially from the mainstream medical approach.

The patient understands that evaluations and treatment by specialist who hold the mainstream views should be consulted prior to seeking out my services.

The patient understands that the approach offered by Dr. Jaller, to reflects ideas proffered by the guidelines and thinking of the international Lyme and associated disease society; and the patient understands that the alternative, mainstream approach are proffered guidelines put forth by Infectious Disease Society Of America. The patient also understands that the Center For Disease Control has linked their website regarding pertaining to Lyme Disease with that of the Infectious Disease Society Of America.

The patient understands that all medical procedures may be associated with serious risks and potential complications including death.

The patient understands that risks of long term antibiotics include: Allergic Reactions, Possible Anaphylaxis, the risk of Clostridia Difficile Colitis which can be life threatening in its most severe forms and many others.

The patient is aware of highly controversial nature of the alternative treatments which include the use of long term antibiotics and that the State Of Maryland has stated such treatments are not based on science.

Sign:

Date: